Course Description

This course is developed for M.A. students of TEFL at Sharif University of Technology who intend to develop an academic knowledge of written discourse and genre in language related disciplines. In addition to writing, students will be familiarized with some fundamental issues in study skills including online and library search. Though creative writing is welcomed, the instructor will mainly adopt a genre-based approach following the dominant genres and subgenres. This syllabus is a spiral one but a negotiated syllabus will also emerge- through classroom interactions- and minor changes might occur during the term depending on the students' competence and ability. Moreover, since only one course is allocated to academic writing in Iran, some basics of writing already covered in B.A. level are taken for granted.

Course Objectives

Among many objectives, students are expected to:

- develop their confidence and self-efficacy in academic writing;
- get familiar with the structural conventions and genres of academic writing;
- boost their academic integrity by learning how to avoid plagiarism;
- be familiarized with the main trends of research and academic journals in TEFL/Applied Linguistics and related national and international academic institutes and universities;
- improve their critical reading/writing skills along with writing more clearly and incisively;
- develop the ability to edit, refine, and polish their written works; and
- get familiarized with the APA system of referencing and citation.

Scoring Criteria

a) Class Participation	2 points
b) Classroom Assignments	4 points
c) Mini Proposal	4 points
d) Final Exam	10 points
